At Cerno’s core is a friendship that dates back to when the three founders became close friends as young boys, growing up in Laguna Beach, California. Bret Englander, Daniel Wacholder, and Nick Sheridan share a love for the ocean, the natural environment, and a passion for design, and building things. They also share a belief in the infinite power of human creativity, which is what led them to start their business back in 2009.

Eleven years later, their toolbox and capabilities are far more robust than when they were getting started. Today, in addition to their standard product offering, they have amassed an impressive portfolio of custom projects. The following pages are a sampling of a few of the custom projects Cerno has worked on over the last several years.
These values are Cerno’s North Star, functioning as both a guiding light and a focal point. We respect people, we respect our raw materials and where they originate, and we respect processes. We are firm believers in continual improvement, which keeps our passion for innovating and manufacturing in Southern California burning bright.

VALUES

- Respect Others
- Tell The Truth
- Be Fair
- Try New Ideas
- Ask Why
- Keep Your Promises
- Do Your Share
At the top of Cerno’s Code of Conduct sits “Respect Others.” Respect is the most fundamental ingredient in creating a positive environment and desirable work culture. People feeling respected and open to learning new ideas results in a team that produces a higher quality light fixture or piece of furniture.

We are grateful for every individual that is a part of our collaborative creative process.
