

Baggu's First Home Line, Perfume That Smells Like Vacation, and Brooklyn's Buzziest New Store

Our editors share their Friday faves.

Our days are punctuated by scouting new talent, attending market appointments, and scrolling Instagram in an effort to unearth the products, people, and news you actually need to know. Here's what we Slacked one another about this week.

Warm Glow

All of the things we love about a good interior sconce—the flattering all-around glow, their ability to resemble little wall sculptures—are present in Cerno's new duo of ceramic fixtures, but—surprise!—they're for outside. Artists Scott and Naomi Schoenherr crafted Creo and Dea out of unglazed terracotta, which will age just as beautifully as your patio planters. Install these before your next barbecue and you're golden—literally. —Lindsey Mather, editorial director, home
